

WE CAN WORK IT OUT

A short series of Bible Studies exploring
The Bible, marriage and sexuality

Mark Dunn-Wilson

Does the Bible have a clear and unequivocal teaching on matters of gender, sexuality and marriage? How can people engage seriously with Scripture and yet seemingly reach very different conclusions?

Having identified key Biblical passages used by those who espouse a traditional view of marriage and sexuality, we will explore them together with the benefit of biblical scholars from across the theological spectrum.

Available from

The Circuit Office, Truro Methodist Church

£3

Revd Mark writes: “My purpose in preparing these studies is not to change anybody’s mind. I have long-ago accepted that ‘The People called Methodist’ will not all agree in these matters. My hope is that we can come to a place where we can openly and honestly explore a spectrum of views, be gracious in our conversation and hold one another as children of God within the love of Christ.”

Enabling a difficult conversation

Encouraging gracious disagreement